The Inglis Impact Accelerator is Looking for Its Next Cohort.

The Inglis Impact Accelerator's cohort programming has two main goals: to support innovative ideas and to support founders with disabilities. Their rigorous selection process will prioritize ideas in three core areas—housing accessibility, assistive technology, and innovative healthcare models, as well as founders who identify as having a disability. All businesses with innovative ideas are encouraged to apply regardless of sector or disability status.

In the Spring of 2024, the Inglis Impact Accelerator will run a 15-week virtual program concluding with a dynamic virtual pitch event. Throughout the program, six businesses will refine their concepts, attract and engage customers, and optimize sales funnels through interactive webinars, workshops, and one-on-one and group coaching sessions. At least one founding team member should expect to spend at least 4-6 hours per week participating in programming and dedicated work efforts for the 15-week program.
